It's alarming that the EPA blocked the publishing of a study that found the chemicals used to make nonstick products are dangerous at levels around 10 times lower than the EPA's advised exposure of 70 parts per trillion. Publish the study today.

Republicans must return to their conservation roots

Environmental protection is a great American success story.

Ads by Revcontent

The nation's economy is humming along nicely with unemployment at an all-time low. Now President Trump and Congress must unite for a clean and healthy environment, and Republicans must reclaim leadership on this critical issue.

Republicans have rightfully opposed misguided policies such as President Obama's Clean Power Plan and the Waters of the United States rule. But for far too long, we have done little to proactively shape policy solutions, leaving a vacuum that liberal interest groups have filled with big-government solutions.

It's high time the party of Teddy Roosevelt reclaims the environment, redefines the narrative, and leverages good old-fashioned American know-how and innovation. As Roosevelt once said, "Conservation is a great moral issue, for it involves the patriotic duty of insuring the safety and continuance of the nation."

Environmental protection is a great American success story. The quality of our environment affects every aspect of our economy, health, and quality of life. Thanks, in large measure, to conservative leaders, including Richard Nixon, who established the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and signed into law the federal clean air and water acts, we are a healthier and more prosperous nation.

We can afford a clean environment because of a robust economy. Moreover, our energy companies, increasingly focused on cleaner energy, are poised to lead the world, creating even more American jobs.

Yet despite our environmental gains over the last 45 years, we still have a long way to go.

Environmental pollution continues to harm America's working families and communities. For example, air pollution alone causes 200,000 early deaths each year in the U.S. Children and those living in socioeconomically distressed communities continue to be disproportionately harmed by air and water pollution. Consider the tragedy in Flint, Mich., where 100,000 people were unwittingly poisoned by lead in their drinking water. As well, many of our nation's water bodies such as the Chesapeake Bay, the Great Lakes, and Gulf of Mexico continue to be impaired due to excess pollution, imposing enormous costs on communities, businesses, and the public health. And there are over 1,300 endangered or threatened species in the U.S listed under the Endangered Species Act and hundreds more are awaiting review.

While many, including myself, applaud the president's decisive actions to reform federal agencies and roll back bad regulations, a caution is in order. We can't afford to gut national safeguards to protect public health and the environment. The American public cares deeply about clean air, clean water, and our public lands.

To be great again means that our air and water are safe and clean, our streams and lakes are swimmable and fishable, our oceans are free from toxic plastic pollution, our public lands are properly maintained and accessible to all, and our natural resources are managed according to the best available science.

My party must return to its conservation roots. It is our moral and patriotic duty.

We can start to by passing important bipartisan legislation. The first, sponsored by Sens. Richard Burr, R-N.C., and Maria Cantwell, D-Wash., would permanently authorize the Land and Water Conservation Fund, one of the most important programs for protecting federal public lands and waters, including national parks, forests, and wildlife refuges.

Another bill, the WILD (Wildlife Innovation and Longevity Driver) Act, co-sponsored by Sens. John Barrasso, R-Wyo., and Tom Carper, D-Del., would promote wildlife conservation, fight against invasive species, and protect threatened species using U.S. technology and innovation. The National Park Restoration Act, sponsored by Sen. Lamar Alexander, R-Tenn., would help reduce the growing maintenance backlog that has long plagued our national parks. And lastly, the Recovering America's Wildlife Act, sponsored by Rep. Jeff Fortenberry, R-Neb., would help proactively protect species from endangerment and being placed on the ESA list.

America is at its best when we recognize and attack common challenges. Let's put aside partisan politics and make our great outdoors great again.

Andy Sabin, a lifelong Republican, is the Chairman and President of Sabin Metal Corporation and founder of the Andrew Sabin Family Foundation, which funds global research and conservation to protect imperiled species and their habitat, environmental scholarships, and cancer research.

Subject: Congratulations Mr. Wheeler.

Dear Mr. Wheeler - I am enthused to see from your resume that you were an Eagle Scout, and have played an important role in protecting our economy. I hope this means that you will return the EPA to its original purpose of protecting the environment and people's lives and health. The future of the American landscape is in your hands. Climate change is not a theory, it is real, and the majority of the world's scientists and world leaders are in support of doing everything possible to lessen its cataclysmic effects. Pollution costs lives and livelihoods. Mr. Pruitt unfortunately believed none of this and was hell bent to destroy the EPA, and our environment. Don't let our children and grandchildren down. Do the right thing and put our environment first, and the oligarchs last. We are counting on you. Your era may well extend into the next presidency, which I think will not be that far off, and a new plan for our environment will serve you well to succeed.

regards and best wishes.

The SEC must require Bloom to disclose who these "certain accredited individuals and qualified institutional buyers" are?

Senator Schumer the Bloomer and other bought senators need to tell us how they were lobbied to reinstate the 30% investment tax credit to the Bloom Dog Gal that was ready to be put down.

Bloom is Solyndra times eight and Flint on Steroids. I do not give a hoot that John Doerr and his friends are accredited or not accredited. In a world here GREEN LIES MATTER the Bloomdogglers are as low as one can go.

Andrew –

Following up on my telephone message, I called to see if you may be interested and available to speak at the Annual Meeting of the American College of Environmental Lawyers to be held on October 4-6, 2018 at the Jackson Lake Lodge in the Grand Teton National Park. We tentatively would have you speak on Friday, October 5, but are flexible to accommodate your schedule. Having enjoyed presenting with you on panels at the Clean Air Act conferences in D.C. for many years, I know you are a skilled speaker and would love the opportunity to introduce you some of the best environmental lawyers in the nation. Please let me know, and my full contact information is provided below.

Andy: I wanted to wish you the best of luck as you take on this new duty and obligation. I just wanted to send you an email to let you know if you needed anyone to bounce ideas off of as you move through this challenge/opportunity, do not hesitate to reach out to me. Just remember that any guidance I give you is worth what you paid for it.
